“Yanks in the U.K.” World War II tour open to public

LANCASTER, Texas — British and American sites critical to World War II and its history will be the focus of a summer tour led by Cedar Valley College (CVC) professor Calvin L. Christman. The May 15–26, 2007, “Yanks in the U.K.,” tour promises to be an educational and enjoyable experience.

“The tour is open to the public, and we plan to enjoy the great locations, scenery and tradition that Great Britain has to offer,” says Christman, professor of military history for 25 years and editor of the books “America at War” and “Lost in the Victory.”

The tour will visit many World War II locations, including the American Air Museum at Duxford, Winston Churchill’s war rooms and estate, the American Cemetery near Cambridge and Portsmouth Harbor’s historical ships, museums and D-Day sites.

The cost of the tour is $3,678 per person, which includes airfare, hotels, museum fees, local guides, transportation, daily breakfasts and three dinners. The deadline to reserve space on the tour and to place a deposit is Jan. 5, 2007. For more information about the “Yanks in the U.K.” tour, contact Christman at 972-860-8136 or cchristman@dcccd.edu.
